"In my coloring page I focused on unity and the ability to create friendships with and love who you want. As someone who has struggled to find a place emotionally and feel comfortable around people, I wanted to make something flowing and calm that reflected hope and connection. I tried to use various symbols to reflect these feelings as well as new beginnings and peace after overcoming struggles. For me, this piece represents how we are not alone and that both the bad and good things in life make us who we are."

Thanks, Sarah! Anything else to add?
